Issue description The noindex directive in the <head> section of the page's HTML code prevents search engines from displaying the page in the search results. If the page uses the noindex directive, search engines will not rank the page, even if other websites link out to it.	How to fix Only use this directive on pages that you don't want to appear in the search results. Make sure these pages are not blocked by the robots.txt file. Otherwise, search engine bots will not be able to see the noindex directive, and if other websites link out to these pages, they can appear in the search results.

Issue description The pages indicated in the report return a 3XX response code, meaning that a redirect is set up from such pages. The 3XX response code in itself is not a problem, but each redirect puts an additional load on the server, so it's better to remove unnecessary internal redirects.	How to fix Make sure that the number of 3XX pages on your website does not exceed 5% of the total number of pages. If their number exceeds 10%, then you have a critical problem, and you should immediately remove some of the redirects.

ISSUES	PAGES	NEW	FIXED
Issue description 4XX HTTP status codes indicate that the requested page or resource cannot be accessed. 4XX URLs provide a poor user experience for the site's visitors because they cannot access the page or file via the link they clicked on. Moreover, internal links to 4XX URLs drain your crawl budget. Pages of your website that changed their response code to 4XX will be removed from search engine indexes.	How to fix Review the list of 4XX URLs and analyze every internal page that's linked to a 4XX URL. Remove such broken links or replace them with appropriate links to live and accessible pages. Moreover, you can set up 301 redirects when moving or deleting the site's pages to avoid having 4XX errors. The HTTP response code 429 (Too Many Requests) may indicate that the crawl rate specified under the crawl settings for your project is too high for the web server to handle. Decrease it via the settings (Limits and restrictions) and rescan the project.

Issue description Some internal links on your website point to pages whose URL has changed. Redirects allow both visitors and search engines to access the relevant page, but we still recommend you replace such links. In some cases, such links may cause the page to work incorrectly (for example, if the site was moved to HTTPS and internal links still use the HTTP protocol). Redirects also result in the loss of a small fraction of the link juice.	How to fix Replace all internal links indicated in the report with up-to-date page URL addresses.

Issue description

This section shows website pages whose text-to-HTML ratio is below 10%. This means that such pages are overloaded with code that may slow down its load time and complicate content processing.

How to fix

To speed up page load time and reduce page size, shorten the HTML code. For example, you could remove all unnecessary comments, spaces, empty lines—in a word, remove everything that shouldn't be there and optimize the code structure.

Description

This section contains a set of website quality metrics that are based on the user experience. Among them you will find Core Web Vitals that are considered by Google when measuring website satisfaction, and include LCP (Largest Contentful Paint) that measures the main content loading speed, FID (First Input Delay) that measures how long it takes for the website to respond when a user clicks on something, and CLS (Cumulative Layout Shift) that measures visual stability during page loading.
